

AAN Award for Creative Expression of Human Values in Neurology
Sponsored by the AAN Ethics, Law and Humanities Committee

The “Creative Expression Award” (CEA) recognizes an outstanding poem, short story, or work of creative nonfiction that artistically expresses human values in the practice of neurology, including compassion for persons with neurological disorders, and reflection by physicians involved in their care.

Eligibility:

Open to AAN members who have published a poem, short story, essay, memoir, or personal history in Reflections: Neurology and the Humanities in the journal Neurology® between January and December of the year for which the award is being presented. In addition, submissions of poems, short stories or creative nonfiction specifically for consideration for the CEA will be accepted. Individuals who have been recipients of the AAN Award for Creative Expression of Human Values in Neurology within the past three (3) years are ineligible.

The AAN CEA winner will receive $500; in addition, $1500 will be contributed in honor of the winner to an approved charity of the winner’s choice.

The CEA winner will receive recognition at the Scientific Awards and Career Milestones luncheon at the AAN Annual Meeting.

For information about manuscript preparation and submission to Reflections: Neurology and the Humanities, view the Information for Authors page on Neurology’s website.

For additional information or submission of manuscripts specifically for award consideration, contact Karen Kasmirski at 651-695-2731 or kkasmirski@aan.com.